WILLIAM IT'S POLICY.

Proclamation to the People of Ger-

FUNERAL OF THE LATE EMPEROR.

Glowing Tribute to Frederick in the House of Commons by Gladstore-Austria and the War Question.

BERLIN, June 18 .- The following is Emperor William's proclamation to the German people issued to-day:

To My People: God's decree has once more plunged us into the most poignant sorrow. The tomb has scarcely closed over the mortal remains of my never-to-be-forgotten grandfather, when his Majesty, my warmly loved father, is also called from this life into everlasting peace. The heroic energy, prompted by the Christian selfsacrifice with which, despite his suffering, he knew how to fulfill his kingly duties, seemed to justify the hope that he would be preserved to the fatherland still longer. God willed differently. The royal sufferer, whose heart beat responsive to all, was great and beautiful. He only had a few months granted to him to display on the throne the noble qualities of mind and heart which won him the love of his people. The virtues which adorned him and the victories which he achieved on the hattlefield will tories which he achieved on the battlefield will remain a grateful remembrance as long as Ger-man hearts beat. An imperishable glory will il-lumine his chivalrous figure in the history of the fatherland. Called to the throne of my fathers, lumine his chivalrous figure in the history of the fatherland. Called to the throne of my fathers, I have assumed the government, looking up to the King of Kings, and have vowed to God that after the example of my fathers I will be a just and clement prince to my people, that I will foster piety and fear of God, that I will protect peace and promote the welfare of the country, and that I will be a helper of the poor and distressed and a true guardian of the right. In praying God for strength to fulfill these kingly duties, which His will imposes upon me. I am supported by confidence in the Prussian people, which a glance at our past history gives me. In good and in evil days the Prussian people have always stood by their king. Upon this fidelity, which my fathers have found an indissoluble bond at all times of difficulty and danger, I rely, with a consciousness of returning it from the bottom of my heart as the faithful prince of a faithful people, both equally strong in their devotion to their common fatherland. From this consciousness of the reciprocated love uniting me and my people I derive confidence that God will vouchsafe me strength and wisdom to exercise my kingly office for the welfare of the fatherland.

THE FUNERAL SERVICES.

Body of Frederick III at Rest in Fred-

Potsdam, June 18 .- At 9 o'clock this morning the bells were tolled, and the ministers who were to officiate at the Emperor's funeral took their places around the coffin in the palace. The choir sang Bach's hymn, "Soon Thou callest me to higher joys," and the choral, "Jesus is my trust."

As the last strains died away Chaplain Koegel arose and offered a prayer, in which he alluded in feeling terms to the double grievous visitation upon the Imperial home and upon the nation. He thanked God for all he had done for the departed monarch and implored heavenly consolation for the sorely tried members of the Imperial family and for the nation. The chorale "If I am to die" was then sung, after which the coffin was removed from the castle and placed on the funeral car, the choir meanwhile singing, "I know that my Redeemer Liveth." commanders of twelve regiments, of which the late Emperor was the chief officer, car-ried the coffin to the hearse. Eight majors than took the horses by the bridles.

Meanwhile the troops had assumed their positions and the various dignitaries, deputations and warriors' associations their

In the procession from the castle to the church the Prince of Wales walked with the Emperor and the King of Saxony. Among those who took part in the procession were Prince Henry, second son of the deceased Emperor; the Hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen and the generals of the army, beaded by Count von Moltke, who carried a marshal's staff. Bodies of the Prussian Corps of the Guard and the Dragoons Guard brought up the rear of the procession.

The troops which took part comprised the entire garrison in Potsdam and a portion of the Berlin and Spandau garrisons. They consisted of one combined infantry battalion, two combined cavalry squadrons, two combined batteries of artillery, a regiment of the guard corps from Berlin and similar com-bined battalions and batteries from Spandan.

Bismarck did not, as he intended doing, attend the funeral of the Emperor. He is so exhausted by the excitement which he has recently undergone that he is compelled to rest, and Emperor William expressly commanded him to spare himself from attending the funeral.

Upon arriving at the church this morning mourners took the seats assigned to them. After the service Chaplain Koegel pro-nounced the benediction. There was no ser-mon. After the firing of volleys and minute guns by the troops the mourners took their departure. Before leaving the widowed Empress bent over the coffin and took a solemn farewell look at her dead husband's face. Court Preacher Persius repeated the closing prayer and the choir intoned a dirge. No funeral sermon was preached to-day the Friedenskirche in accordance with the Dowager Empress Victoria's instructions and the late Emperor Frederick's wishes. A dinner was given at the castle this even by Gladstone. LONDON, June 18 .- In the House of Commons to-day the rising of Mr. Smith was the signal for the uncovering of all the members. Mr. Smith moved that an address be presented to Queen Victoria and the Empres

Germany expressing upon the part of the House of Commons deep concern and con-dolence on the death of Emperor Frederick. Mr. Gladstone seconded the motion. He said that the trial that had befallen the German Empress was probably the greatest that could happen to any human being. Was there any case in which one of so exalted a rank and station had earned such claims upon the admiration and sympathy and pity

The English recollections of Emperor Frederick reach back over a long series of years. It was in the first period of his married life that he made a deep impression on the minds of the people of England. Since then they have felt that their interest in him was a personal interest, not alone founded upon his relations to their sovereign, but upon the high qualities of the man, the bright intelligence, wonderful simplicity, gentleness of character and kindliness which gave him open access to all men.

Those qualities, as time went on, were destined to be followed by the development of others, and when the Crown Prince came to England after the war of 1870, it was impossible not to be profoundly struck by the fact that one who in youth displayed in so peculiar a degree all the modesty of youth, who had in the field carned distinction among heroes of the world, still remained as if all were conscious of his supreme worth except himself. His character remained precisely the same in its unassuming gentleness and total absence of pretense as before he had shown the world some claims for its admiration. ("Hear, hear.")

There might be a disposition to murmur because his reign was so short; but there is another view which should change that murmur into thankfulness. His short period on the throne may be still more glorious in the eyes of the world, and may cause a deep or impression of the invaluable qualities of his mind and character upon the German people and mankind at large. It may well be said of him that in the course of his short time on the throne be fulfilled a long service.

("Hear, hear.")
There was no expectation entertained be fore he became Emperor that was not fully realized by all we heard here of his daily share in the labors of state, or by the wise and comprehensive manifestation of his views on the condition of Europe, as made known at the very ear lest date to the German nation and the nations around him ("Hear, hear.") The recollection of his great qualities, his singular union of wisdom with valor, his known attachment to the liberties of his country, his respect for its Constitution, which would have made him a secure guardian of the privileges of the people, not less than of the honor of the hrone, the winning personal qualities which in him showed forth that most beautiful and appropriate of all associations, that of gentleness with the highest manhood-these recollections and his continued fertitude on his bed of suffering, greater than that displayed by many a soldier and many a martyr, constitute a great and noble inheritance for the German people. (Hear, hear.) We trust that that great mation through a long period of strength, prosperity and virtue will cherish the memory of Emperor Frederick as among the most precious possessions that can accrue to any people on earth. (Cheers.) Lord Hartington thanked Mr. Gladstone for the eloquent expression he had given to the sentiments that prevailed throughout the House. (Cheers.)

PEACE OR WAR.

Count Kalnoky Hopeful That the Alliance Will Stand.

VIENNA. June 18 .- Count Kalnoky, Minster of Foreign Affairs of the Empire, in a speech to the Austrian delegation to-day, aid that the change in the Government at Berlin was the most important event in recent political history. The alliance between Germany and Austria-Hungary, he said, has already proved strong and there is a reasonable hope that it will survive the second change in the German ruler. Nevertheless, in the absence of security regarding the European situation, it behooves each country to rely upon itself and to solidify its defenses in view of the possible occurrence of unioreseen events.

'We stand upon such intimate relations with Germany," continued Count Kalnoky, "that the question presents itself whether the change of rulers may in any way influence those relations. The alliance has as yet withstood strong tests. There have already been two changes of rule without the situation being affected or uneasiness produced. On the contrary, the conviction forces itself upon us that matters remain as they were. This gives a basis to our policy and inspires confidence in the future. The fundamental idea of the alliance is peace and the protection of both empires against external danger.

"Attempts may not be wanting to cast suspicion on this policy. The Russian Government, for instance, may be held foreign to the utterances of Russian papers in this sense, but they nevertheless make an impression apon the Russian people. I must therefore again state that the object of the alliance is the maintenance of peace treaties. There is an element of uncertainty in the state of things which forces the powers sibgly, all allies notwithstanding, to depend upon their own resources. The strengthening of their own defensive power is the surest guarantee of the future. All of the Cabinets desire peace, but they must guard

France's Uneasiness. PARIS, June 18. - Emperor William's proclamation has sent a cold shiver throughout France. M. Floquet, president of the Ministerial Council, addressed the members of the municipality of Marseilles Saturday. He said it was the ambition of the Government to effect internal progressive reform and maintain a peaceful policy abroad. It was unjust, he said, to accuse the French Ministry of desiring war while they were making preparations for an International Heavy Storm in Berks County.

READING, Pa., June 18 .- After an exceedingly hot day this section of the state was visited this afternoon by a terrific storm, which traversed a wide strip of country in a southeasterly direction, doing much damage. The storm was particularly severe in the vicinity of Birdsboro and in the southern portion of the county. Lightning struck a number of buildings, including the railroad depot at Birdsboro. The Hay creek overflowed its banks, carrying away fences and bridges. The hay and wheat crops were ruined.

Malaria in School Houses.

The superintendent of industrial companies cannot afford to longer ignore the school house as a factor in determining the acceptance of a risk upon a child's life. Many of our school houses are filled with poisonous malaria. The children who attend them sicken and sometimes die from this cause alone, and it behooves industrial superintendents to join in the general cry that is being made for improved sanitary plumbing, both in the houses now used and in all that may be erected.—The Insurance

GLOUCESTER'S REPROACH.

A Hapless Jersey Town Invaded by Minions of Evil.

THE MAYOR AWAITS COMPLAINTS.

What Other Officials Say About the Open and Defiant Violation of the Sunday, License and Gaming Laws. .

Even the doubly-titled Prince of Wales-Duke of Gloucester, with all his muchtalked-of love for conviviality, could not but feel a pang of an awakening conscience were he to visit the little town on Jersey's shore that was named after his dukedom. It seems as if the essence of all known vice had been extracted and distributed along Gloncester's shore.

Each day seems to try to surpass the depravity of the day before. Such is not an verdrawn picture of the little town where Democratic rule is supreme. The good citizens of Gloucester and of this city cannot but feel profound anxiety while the shocking murder of Sunday is still lingering in their minds. Some one asks: Where are the authorities? and echo answers Where? Yesterday the place was crowded. the shouts of drunken revelry were heard on every band.

In the pavilions vulgar songs were bel-lowed forth and applauded by those on whose faces were stamped years of vice and by hose just on the threshold of sin. The conlette wheels were whirring as merrily as if their proprietors had never received official notice to quit. In short, nothing was too deprayed for Gloucester, and those who make it so seemed to hold their heads up as if to say that they were equal to any demands in the line of vice.

A Talk With Mayor O'Kane,

Mayor O'Kane was visited and interrogated as to what his official course would be to stem the tide of immorality that was engulfing the really pretty little town. He replied with a broad Celtic accent that he was not aware of anything at all improper within his jurisdiction except by hearsay, and he didn't propose to take any action upon that.

"Will you make a personal investigation?"
"I will not, sir! I never go along shore, and don't propose to. If anyone has any complaint to make let him come before me and I'll fine any lawbreaker."

An attempt was made to further question Mayor O'Kane, but he grew angry and refused to continue the conversation, intimating that it was beneath his official dignity to search out violators of the law for punish-

H. J. West, Under-Sheriff of Camden county, was seen at his Gloucester home, and spoke with considerable warmth regarding the existing condition of affairs. He doesn't hesitate to say that the lawless element have control of the town and are aided by men in responsible positions, giving them an impregnable strength and making it lmost an impossibility to defeat their ends. He says that cases of aggravated assault and battery and of other kinds known as bail cases that should be sent to the Camden County Criminal Court for trial are disposed of by fining the offenders. Information, he said, had been given him that a writ of injunction against the Sunday ball games would soon be applied for before the Chancery Court.

Coupled with all other lawlessness is the selling of liquor without a license. Among this sort of offenders are alleged to be a man named Gallagher, on Jersey avenue, near Ferry street, and Charles Knapper, in the grove near the base ball grounds. The licenses of both expired June 1, and the latter, of whose place Harry Roop, recently released from prison in this city, is alleged to be the proprietor, was absolutely refused, while that of Gallagher was held under advisement.

These allegations were reiterated by Recorder Daniel Lane, who also said the roulette wheels were unlicensed and illegal. Speaking of the person in whom power was invested to quell all lawlessness, he named Mayor O'Kane, although the Mayor has several times claimed that he was powerless to act. City Councilman William Barnard correborated Mr. Lane, and said he could be quoted as saying that beer was being sold openly and above board on Sunday.

The police force of Gloucester consists in all of six persons, a chief, captain, lieutenant, sergeant and two officers. A force of twenty-five special police are employed by the ferry company to patrol the shore and among them is "Nitchie" Golden, a Camden pugilist.

At a meeting of Methodist ministers in Wesley Hall, No. 1018 Arch street, yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. George Maclaughlin spoke of the Sabbath desecration at Gloucester, and marveled at the authorities permitting it to continue. Rev. J. W. Sayers and Rev. Dr. Barnes spoke in the same Rev. J. W. Lippincott, of Camden, said that 60,000 of the worst element of Philadelphia went there each Sunday and advised that they be educated to love the Sabbath so that they would not go to Gloucester and disgrace themselves. The discussion, which was beginning to be interesting, was interrupted by the entrance of Bishop Foss, who will be the next resident Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia and vicinity.

The Sugar Duty. NEW YORK, June 18 .- At a meeting of the Republican Club to-night a number of new members were admitted, including Warner Miller. A resolution was passed declaring that a reduction of the duty on sugar would be a grave economic mistake and would arrest the development of the sugar industry in Louis'ana, Texas and Florida, would prevent the introduction of sorghum sugar growing in the Southern and Middle States and the making of best root sugar in the Middle and Northern states. It would raise the price of sugar all over the world by reducing the sources of supply.

Reduction in Wages Proposed. The Pennsylvania Steel Works at Harrisburg will close down for two weeks on the lat of July to make repairs usual at this time of year. Secretary Barker said yesterday that owing to a falling off in the demand for steel rails the company had fewer orders on hand than usual, probably only enough to keep the works running for two weeks. In consequence of the duliness of trade a reduction in wages has been determined upon, to go into effect when the works start up again. The reduction, which will affect 3700 men, will average about 10 per cent.

Change of Route.

The Traction Company has changed the route of the small transfer cars running between Franklin and Thompson and Somerset and Richmond streets to run over the route of the recently inaugurated Lehigh avenue and Twelfth and Sixteenth streets branch and put the large cars formerly running over the latter route to do service in place of the small cars, with the exception that when they reach Franklin and Master streets they are attached to a cable car and run to Market street ferry and on the return trip up Seventh street to Oxford, where horses are attached, thence to Port Richmond.

Corbin's Success-A Brutal Woman-N. W. H. Hix's Death-The Diss Debars' Sentence-Elevator Charges and Other Matters.

NEW YORK, June 18 .- Mr. Austin Corbin to-day said that his success in placing the new loan for the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company had fully met his expectations, and he believed that a new era of prosperity was opening for the corporation. Mr. Corbin was especially gratified in having secured the backing of such well-known banking firms as the Rothschilds, the Barings, Brown, Shipley & Co., and J. S. Morgan & Co. He was not prepared to say what portion of the new Reading 4 per cents. would go to foreign subscribers.

Mrs. Emma Carleton, 40 years old, a widow, of No. 310 West Fourth street, was arraigned at Jefferson Market Police Court to-day, charged with having brutally beaten Albert Bowker, 12 years old, at about 10 o'clock last night. She undressed the boy, bound him hand and foot with leather straps, and then beat him upon the back and breast with a leather strap. The boy's shrieks aroused the neighbors. Patrolman Schreiber went to the house. On entering the room oc-cupied by Mrs. Carleton he found her there with the boy Albert, who was then bound with straps so that he was unable to help himself, and whose body was covered with large welts. He was emaciated and it a pittiable condition. The boy was an orphan.

The woman was held for the grand jury.

The members of the Consolidated Exchange were shocked this morning at the announcement of the sudden death of N. W. H. Hix. one of the most active and popular members of the Exchange. On Friday he submitted to a surgical operation for an affection of the kickeys and he died from the shock on Saturday afternoon at his home, No. 1280 Park avenue. He has been a member of the Exchange since the consolidation, and was a member of the nominating committee at the recent election. Suitable resolutions will be ader ted.

Judge Gildersleeve, in sentencing the Diss Debars to-day to six mouths' imprisonment each, said among other things: gard marital relations. You sought to obtain prefit by other people's misfortunes. Then in addition to ordinary false pretenses the female defendant added the denial of her own mother with a boldness, effrontery and presumption upon the credulity of men that in all my long experience here I have never seen equaled. I can find nothing in mitigation of your punishment except the jury's recommendation to mercy. That, in the in-terest of criminal trials, it is my duty to respect.

In the Stewart will case to-day, Mr. Anstey said he knew of the existence of no account books of the firm. When shown the account books kept for Mrs. Stewart he said he knew of Mrs. Stewart having the books in her hand once. This was on November 8, 1879, in the mill office of Judge Hilton. The witness was in the office with the books a a few minutes. During this time Mrs. Stewart signed her name to a paper. The witness wrote a certificate of acknowledg-

Alfred Anker, a pawnbroker at No. 74 ewark avenue, ev City The police have warrants for his arrest. He is accused of having swindled John Jacobs, of No. 1 Park place, New York, out of $1520 and Simon Frankel & Son out of $331.50. To Frankel & Son he gave a worthless check on the First National Bank. Jacobs trusted him with diamonds on the understanding that he was to sell them or return them if he did not rell them by a certain time.

The Jersey City police have been notified that Assemblyman Richard Brown and his son and ex-Under Sheriff John Wright are missing, under circumstances that have alarmed their families. Yesterday morning they hired a yacht at the Jersey City Yacht Club, to take a sail down the bay. They had not returned at noon to-day, and their families fear that something has befallen Gottlieb Groezenger, the Newark avenue saloon-keeper who shot Timothy J. McDermott in his saloon Saturday night, had an examiration before Police Justice Wanser in Jersey City this morning. He was committed to await the result of McDermott's injuries. McDermott is believed to be at the point of death. He is only 20 years of age and is the son of a rich Washington Market dealer, who died recently, leaving him a snug fortune.

PRINCETON'S 'EIGHTY-EIGHT. Auspleious Class Day and Interesting Chapel and Campus Exercises. PRINCETON, June 18 .- "'Eighty-eight" had as auspicious a class day as any class that was ever graduated from Princeton. The weather was perfect. The exercises began at 10 A. M. in the First Presbyterian Church with the class oration and poem by James H. Paine and Fred L. Drummond. of New Jersey, respectively. E. O. Wagen-hurst delivered the salutatory. Lander's Orchestra was present.

The audience then adjourned to the campus in front of "Old North," where the class ivy was planted. The slip was presented by Mrs. J. R. Thompson Swann in behalf of the regents of Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon and was taken from there. The ivy oration was delivered by Walter Wyckoff, of Indiana.

The exercises were continued in the afternoon in the amphitheatre round "The Cannon." Thomas M. Parrott, of Ohio, read the class history, the presentation of mementoes was performed by James R. Church, of the District of Columbia, and the prophecy was delivered by William M. Irvine, of Penn-sylvania. The censor, F. N. McCarter, of New Jersey, then made his strictures, after which there were the address by the class president, George R. Scott, of New York, the calling of the roll and the singing of the class ode. The music of the ode is by Ernest T. Carter, of New York, and the words are by Thomas M. Parrott, of Ohio.

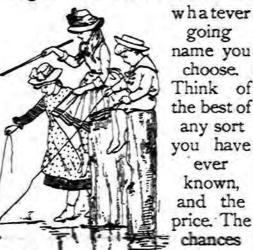

After this the Ivy Club gave a reception in the enlarged and beautiful club house, followed by a dance. In the evening the junior oratorical contest took place in the First Presbyterian Church. The town is thronged with alumni and friends of the college, and reunions are being held on all sides.
